

Can new energy vehicle license plate numbers be selected online

AI Overview

Yes, new energy vehicle license plate numbers can be selected online using official platforms like the Traffic Management 12123 app or local government portals. Online Selection Methods NEV owners can choose their license plate numbers online through two main methods: Random Selection – The system automatically generates a number for you. You can attempt this multiple times per day, but the outcome depends on luck. Self-Composed Selection – You can pre-select a preferred number according to personal preference. Once confirmed, this choice replaces the opportunity for random selection, so careful planning is recommended. The online process typically requires logging into the Traffic Management 12123 app or local government platforms such as the Suishenban Citizen Cloud in Shanghai, completing eligibility verification, entering vehicle information, and then proceeding to the license plate selection interface. Timing and Requirements License plate selection can usually be done 3–5 days after NEV approval, though in some cases, approval and selection can occur on the same day if all documents are ready. Required documents include the vehicle purchase invoice, certificate of conformity, and tax receipts. NEV plates start with D for pure electric vehicles and F for non-pure electric vehicles, and certain numbers or letters (like I and O) are restricted. City-Specific Notes In cities like Shanghai, online applications for special NEV license plates are handled via mini-programs or apps, with eligibility checks and vehicle verification before final approval. Some pilot cities allow direct online pre-selection of NEV plates, while others may require initial registration at the vehicle management office before online selection. Tips for Online Selection Prepare a list of preferred numbers in advance if using self-selection. Consider auspicious numbers (e.g., 8 or 6) and avoid unlucky numbers (e....
