

Custom Network Testing Rack Manufacturer

AI Overview

Several manufacturers specialize in custom network and test racks, including Microelectronics, nVent SCHROFF, TestWorks, AMCO Enclosures, and Rackmount Solutions. Key Manufacturers and Offerings

Microelectronics provides custom test racks for industries such as medical, automotive, industrial control, and aerospace. Their racks support Automatic Functional Testing (AFT) using “bed-of-nails” or pogo-pin fixtures, enabling parallel testing of PCBAs and automated firmware programming for production-ready devices . nVent SCHROFF designs high-quality racks and enclosures for test and measurement systems. They offer modular hardware compatible with PXIe, AXIe, and cPCIe boards, along with cooling solutions like air/water heat exchangers. Their services include project management, prototyping, testing, certification, and series production, making them suitable for complex network and electronics testing environments . TestWorks Group specializes in custom test solutions using modular test hardware and software. They provide build-to-print systems, reverse engineering of incomplete documentation, and custom PCB design for test fixtures. Their expertise spans PXI, USB, LXI, GPIB/IEEE, and PCI/PCIe-based instrumentation . AMCO Enclosures focuses on configurable server racks and electronic cabinets. Their online configurator allows customers to design racks with specific dimensions, load requirements, and accessories, making them ideal for network testing setups that require precise customization . Rackmount Solutions offers a wide range of custom server racks and data center solutions, including power, cooling, and security accessories. They provide professional installation and maintenance services, supporting both small-scale and enterprise-level network testing environments .
