

Price of Fireproof and Explosion-proof Transparent Cable Trays

AI Overview

The price of fireproof and explosion-proof transparent cable trays varies widely depending on material, size, fire rating, and supplier, typically ranging from moderate to high cost due to specialized safety features.

Overview of Fireproof and Explosion-Proof Cable Trays

Fireproof cable trays are designed to protect electrical, data, and communication cables from fire, heat, and environmental hazards. They are often made from galvanized steel, stainless steel, or aluminum, with stainless steel offering superior fire and corrosion resistance. Explosion-proof or high-safety variants are used in oil, gas, chemical, and industrial facilities where sparks or heat could trigger hazardous events. Transparent versions, often made from high-strength polycarbonate or coated glass, allow visual inspection of cables without opening the tray.

Key Features Affecting Price

- Material: Stainless steel and aluminum trays are more expensive than galvanized steel due to durability and fire resistance.
- Fire Rating: Trays tested to standards like UL 1724, NFPA 70, or DIN 4102-12 command higher prices because they maintain circuit integrity during fire events.
- Design: Ladder, mesh, U-shaped, or enclosed trays differ in cost. Enclosed or modular trays with intumescent coatings or fireproof blankets are more expensive.
- Size and Load Capacity: Larger trays or those supporting high-density cabling increase material and manufacturing costs.
- Additional Features: Explosion-proof coatings, EMI shielding, corrosion-resistant finishes, and modularity for easy installation add to the price.

Typical Applications

- Industrial plants, chemical and petrochemical facilities
- Data centers and server rooms
- Hospitals, airports, and high-rise buildings
- Power stations, substations, and offshore platforms
