AI Overview

Cable tray prices vary by material, type, and supplier, ranging from $0.80 to $50 per meter depending on specifications and purchase volume. Online Suppliers and Price Listings Ekabel24 offers a wide range of cable trays, including hot-dip galvanized steel, stainless steel, and halogen-free plastic systems, suitable for industrial and construction applications, with pricing available upon request for orders over €500 or €1000 (ekabel24.de). Accio provides a detailed price list for both B2C and B2B markets. Retail prices on platforms like Amazon range from $15 to $34 per unit, while bulk B2B purchases on Alibaba can range from $0.80 to over $76 per unit depending on material and size (accio.com). McMaster-Carr lists over 850 cable tray products in various styles and sizes, with options for same-day or next-day delivery, allowing buyers to check prices directly on their website (mcmaster.com). Price Factors Cable tray pricing depends on several factors: Material: Galvanized steel is common and cost-effective, stainless steel is more durable and expensive, aluminum is lightweight and corrosion-resistant, and plastic trays are budget-friendly but less suitable for heavy loads (apextray.com). Type: Ladder trays are more expensive but support heavy cables, wire mesh trays are cheaper and ideal for lightweight wiring, and perforated trays can save up to 15% compared to ladder trays (apextray.com). Coating and Finish: Hot-dip galvanizing, powder coating, or pre-galvanized finishes affect durability and cost (apextray.com). Size and Load Capacity: Larger trays or those designed for heavy-duty applications cost more. Installation Costs: Labor, supports, connectors, and brackets add to the total cost. Steel trays typically range from $5 to $25 per meter, aluminum from $6 to $30 per meter, FRP trays from $10 to $50 per meter, and stainless steel trays are the most expensive due to high durability.
